

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An information processing apparatus is constructed to include a storage unit, and a processing part which registers information of the information processing apparatus by transmitting to a first database of a registration center when a password input error is detected and stores transmission log information related to a transmission to the registration center into said storage unit.